ANNOTATION: This article contains the importance of the talifices of the word in introducing scientific and popular texts in primary school textbooks.

KEYWORDS: Primary education, scientific concepts, etymology, scientific texts, texts of called the "Motherland", in it is the etymology of the words "Century".

Science is the basis of development. There is no future for modern scientific achievements, both the country, which is not based on innovative ideas. Only through knowledge and enlightenment, intellectual potential, comprehensive capacity, can lead Uzbekistan to a new stage of development [1].

According to the hadith, the study of the knowledge is better than a night prayer, and a one-day lesson is better than fasting. One scholar said that one of our ancestors said, "Learn knowledge, and it provides you with your youthful walk. When you get big, you will be one of your main reasons when you become a great person. Science is always with you, protecting your enemy, and you stumble, "he will defeat your enemies." Every science has its own honor and greatness. It is impossible to master all the sciences, so it is pleasing to study the sciences that require, in life, serve the beliefs. Consequently, the scientific-popular articles from primary school reading books are a means of leading true spirituality and to enlightenment.

It is narrated that "There is no difference between those who forgot the past and do not know the ancestors of the ancestors." Every reader must strive for the years of our people, to learn his history. After all, the future demands those young people today. The growing young generation is an important task of primary education to interest him in education from young years to become the leading specialist in the future. In today's globalization, it is important to implement the younger generation in full acute, talented, educated in each field, with each other with each other with each other in mutual interaction. It is necessary to know the history of the Motherland, the heroes of the contemporaries. Trying to enrich our bragging with modern work is the younger generation. The great past of our country, and the scientific-popular articles about the Motherland and people of our ancestors teach students. Through scientific-popular texts, theoretical information is described in scientific observations and raises artistic aesthetic pleasure at the student. When we meditate on such texts, first of all, it is necessary to look at their meaning.

Scientific-popular literature - Publications designed to acquaint the translation, achievements of the national population, the translation of the national population, and their achievements. Those publications fully maintain the essence of the scientific issue in the fullest public style, helps to cultivate the ideological and scientific level of the student [2]. One of the characteristics of the new generation of primary school reading books is to a multitude of scientific-popular texts and articles.

In the process of primary education, students are achieved to understand art and popular books independently and can choose. The students will focus on becoming a curious reader to reading of newspapers and magazines. The study of scientific-popular works, in turn, expands the knowledge and worldview of the students, actively evokes daily life, the formation of a comprehensive worldview in the students, historical He educates events to react.

The main purpose of teaching scientific-popular texts in primary schools is understandable to children, understanding students with scientific terms and childlike study in the form of children, and independent work with the books of children, It is to train interest in science and to teach it accurate knowledge. We know that many times may occur in the training of students with popular texts. It is advisable to make it eliminate this, that is, to work with the talent of vocabulary to formally develop in the minds of students. In the process of introducing popular text, a brief explanatory work should be carried out, first of all, the etymology.

Etymology (Gun.- Truth; true meaning of the word and . . . Logos - doctors) - 1) Linguistics department studying the origin of words and morphemes. The main task of the etymology of linguistics is considered ancient sources and the form of language dictionary Recovery of the processing process and its original state. The history of origin of each word in the etymology is also provided with detailed information about it, for example, the origin of a word and its meaning is also displayed. After receiving an understanding of the etymology, students will be somewhat easier in the students understand the next part. Scientific texts will contain words that students do not understand. When it is learned in conjunction with the origin of the word, it is understood what the meaning is, what is the reason for such meaning. For example, it is clear what we mean by the introduction of the essential text to introduce the following scientific and popular text in the primary school study textbook:

Motherland

The beautiful we live, is called Uzbekistan. Uzbekistan is covered with a seriously earthly lands, forests. There are high mountains, and there is a river flow. Its underground resources are unconscious: gold, gas, salt, oil, coal, sulfur, etc.

There are many beautiful buildings, hotels, parks, camps. The underground is a subway. A huge motor plant was launched in Asaka. There are minuses, such as Matiz, Damas, and minibuses in Samarkand. They are all served for the people.

We call the country we live by the motherland. What is the reason for this? From ancient times, our ancestors lived. We are born here, grow here. Our Motherland treats us with kindness in his hot arms, loves, conquers, and perfects us. For this reason, we love our Motherland as our mother. His name is called the motherland.

There are many countries, cities in the world, but a place of birth of the mother, but also the mother is better than all.

When the given text is taken, every word in sequence to students, the origin, the meaning of each word series will be gone, and even if it is considered, the case of boredom on the students. occurs, they can also be misleading each other. Therefore, it will be appropriate if it is unfamiliar to them, that is, if it does not know what sense of a word, it is explained through its etymology. For example, the word

"Vatan" from the text above is an Arabic word, which is formed by the replacement for a consonant to the Uzbek language. The word "lives", "Living" is a chapter of the Verbal, meaning "is born and the place of person is born."

"The people" mean "created nursery", created by the interpretation of the Arabic word, meant in Uzbek represents the meanings such as "People living in the same stage," people "[3].

The "Relaxation spot" is made up of a horse, which means his horse, which means meaning "place" with a Tajik Front horse and means "resting."

Through this way, students will be instilled in the minds of students, as a result of the study of the etymology of a word Or that does not occur, the mastery of thinking leads to further expansion of thinking, to increasing their knowledge, and the less interesting is more interesting, as well as the etymology of the Lesson, as well as the etymology. In this sense, the purpose of using the etymology in teaching popular texts is, in this sense, children are to teach children to work and work with books independently and to learn a more independent knowledge. In the process of introducing the texts of historic topic, our ancestors help us to understand how they struggled from the enemy to save the Motherland.
